ABSTRACT

This invention provides secreted active peptides, methods and compositions for making such peptides, and methods of using the peptides in detection assays, for disease diagnosis, for disease treatment and for drug development, in particular for microbial or viral infections.